Hocking Hills Woodland Plan, Application for Demonstration Site Funds

Purpose of the Hocking Hills Woodland Plan

The Hocking Hills Woodland Plan will address local issues and concerns resulting from forest fragmentation and/or land parcelization through a collaborative effort of local landowners and organizations interested in maintaining woodland benefits and services in their area.

Purpose of a Demonstration Site

Demonstration Sites will illustrate practical woodland management activities recommended in the Plan to offset the effects of the locally identified issues and concerns.

Recommended activities include establishing native plants, invasive plant control, wildlife habitat improvement, and woodland improvement activities (e.g. crop tree release, woodland thinning).

Demonstration Site Criteria and General Information

Sites must be in Fairfield County, within the township of Berne or the community of Sugar Grove; or in Hocking County, within the townships of Benton, Falls, Falls-Gore, Good Hope, Green, Laurel, or the community of Logan.

Sites must be owned by a local government or non-profit agency. State and federal lands are not eligible.

Organizations must allow public access to the Demonstration Sites.

Activities must be explained in some way—through signs, brochures, and/or website information.

Sites must be maintained as Demonstration Sites for at least two years but preferably longer.

The Demonstration Site must be open by December 2013 with the exception of tree planting sites which will need to be completed by the spring of 2014.

Awarded grant money will not exceed $7,000, must be matched 1:1, and can only be used for direct costs needed for creating the demonstration site. Matching funds can be cash, in-kind matching costs (equipment or labor), or indirect costs (overhead). However, federal funds cannot be used for the match.

Preference will be given to locally protected lands that border privately-owned woodlands of 2-10 acres in size or woodland cabin owners that provide lodging (e.g. cabin, cottage, bed & breakfast).

Applications will be evaluated and awarded based on how well the proposed demonstration site fits into the Hocking Hills Woodland Plan and meets the goals and objectives outlined in the Plan.
